PALCO Named 2019 Professional Services Business of the Year

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. – PALCO Telecommunications, an industry leader in post-sales supply chain management, has been named the 2019 Professional Services Business of the Year by the Huntsville Chamber of Commerce.

Led by Chairman and CEO, Janice Migliore, PALCO specializes in post-sales support services that enables their clients to optimize efficiencies, improve profitability, and deliver exceptional customer experience after the sell. PALCO supports many of the fortune 500 in the high-tech sector. Migliore, along with her leadership team, continues to drive the company forward into the future through offering its customers innovative solutions and cutting-edge capabilities.

“At PALCO, we strive for excellence at all times. As a business owner and community leader, it is always an honor to have the hard work and dedication of your team recognized by your peers,” says Migliore. “Given Huntsville, Alabama was named one of three rising tech cities throughout the United States by the Wall Street Journal, we are truly honored to be awarded such an accolade to commemorate our involvement and success within the business community in Huntsville and Madison County.”

The 34th Annual Small Business Awards celebration was sponsored by the Huntsville Madison County Chamber of Commerce, an organization dedicated to celebrating community involvement and entrepreneurship. Honorees were nominated by fellow employees, local businesses, entrepreneurs, and community members. Each year, an outside chamber association is selected to judge candidates in the following areas: company values, community involvement, and financial stability. This year’s winners were chosen by the Knoxville Chamber of Commerce.
